

An Easier Way to Better Golf

Can Latest Technology Groove Your Perfect Swing?

By Leonard Finkel

Golf is a difficult game. We all seek that unbridled joy of consistently hitting the ball long and straight. Golfers rarely experience the elusive feel of a fluid swing, let alone implant it in their muscle memory. At a recent media event, I tried an innovative product called the Swing Jacket. I was very impressed because it's the only product I've ever tried that physically guided me through a connected, on-plane swing, much like those you see on Tour. It was literally teaching my body what a fundamentally correct swing should feel like while I was hitting balls. For me, it was an AH HA moment.

Praise for the Swing Jacket is everywhere. Golf Magazine awarded Swing Jacket Four Stars, whose equipment editors wrote, "The jacket is particularly good for golfers who come over the top. It's worth trying." The magazine quoted Scott McCarron stating, "The Swing Jacket taught me how to swing the club down properly from the top with my body...I'm swinging on a better plane now...I'm definitely hitting the ball much straighter." Describing the Swing Jacket, veteran golf equipment writer Ed Travis used terms including very well thought out and constructed and added, "I find it works equally well with full swings, chip shots and wedges," Equipment guru Rick Young found, "The Swing Jacket flat out works and users will see a massive benefit. It was a god-send for me. The key to the Swing Jacket is the level of consistency it can ingrain into your golf swing."

The Swing Jacket corrects problems by allowing any golfer to experience what a great swing actually feels like. Retired Hall of Fame jockey Don Pierce (Encinitas, Ca, 3546 wins) told me, "Swing Jacket puts me in a better position all the time. It helps keep me on the right plane.

The more I swung, the more comfortable it became. "Scott Johnson, (Seattle Wa) boasted, "I tried the Swing Jacket. It took 15 minutes of half swings to get comfortable. I started hitting the ball right at the target. The next day I shot 74 at my home club, hitting 14 greens. I again

"Before I used the Swing Jacket, I had never broken 80. I broke 80 fifteen times last summer and almost shot par. The Swing Jacket has turned my game around and dropped my handicap from 18 to 10."

practiced one afternoon and shot 75. The two best rounds of the year! This is the best training aid I've ever tried!"

Noted instructors also confirm the product's effectiveness. In correspondence with the company, Dan Pasquariello, Associate Director of the Pebble Beach Golf Academy wrote "You folks have created the best learning device that I have ever encountered, since it does allow the student to feel the correct motion and gives them immediate feedback. In this case, the feel is real." Bob McArthur, Canadian National PGA Teacher of the Year believes, "Changing any motor skill like the golf swing is very difficult. With the Swing Jacket, golfers do not have to think about mechanics... they just have to swing and the Swing Jacket will keep them on the correct path."

The company confirms more than 50 Tour players have used Swing Jackets. Stephen Ames tried an early prototype and wanted one.

Asked why a Tour pro would need a Swing Jacket, Ames replied "Practice makes permanent. This will help me practice the right things."

Whether you are an experienced player looking to refine your swing or a raw beginner who wants to develop sound fundamentals right out of the gate, Swing Jacket could be the fastest, easiest way to the improvement we all seek.

Swing Jacket offers a risk-free "Great Swing Guarantee." If you're not hitting the ball longer, straighter and more consistently, just return it for a refund.
